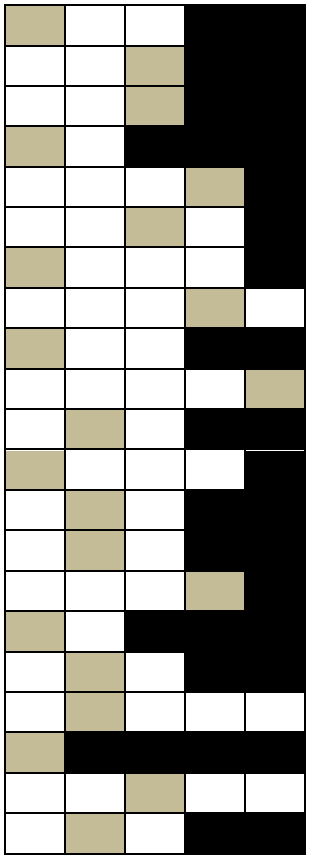
ALL EARS puzzle page

This month's brain-teaser is similar to last month's - in that all you need to do is answer the cryptic clues to indentify the amateur radio related acronyms, and then enter the letters into the boxes provided.

Once you have found all of the clues, take the letters from the shaded boxes, and arrange them to solve the main clue.

1. A force which tends to cause electrons to flow…
2. I'm being interfered with, are you?
3. Perhaps it's time to go to the town center's mall.
4. A long distance diagnosis perhaps.
5. It's reported that this is Bob Bruninga's system.
6. In times of disaster – they are super.
7. Mark my words; you'll get spaced-out using this mode.
8. Your signal report's so bad – it's almost sinful.
9. Effectively, it's what comes out of your antenna…
10. Winning one of these could make you look like a star!
11. You have no control over this… It's all automatic.
12. The best radio 'club' in town.
13. We need people like Harry to sort the rest of them out.
14. What to use when 'green-stamps' won't do.
15. A Canadian invention which links the world.
16. Sadly, he can no longer send CW.
17. This is what she becomes once she's married.
18. You could spend a day at them when there's an emergency.
19. A layer 55-90 miles up.
20. You don't need to get all sensitive about this ratio.
21. It's really just a MODEM by another name.



Now arrange the letters in the shaded boxes to solve the following clue:

Allegedly, it's what the ARRL's field-day is really all about.
